in the workplace

Are

Values?

Most understand that our 'values' represent 'what we value' – or in other words what we believe is truly important, or worth pursuing in life.

Our value systems shape our world and define our choices in practically every aspect of our lives...

Choice of career

Choice of partner

Choice of brands

Based on our R&D, when compared to demographics, Values are 2-5 X more important in predicting consumer behaviour

Values Segmentation

Values Segmentation

Fullfilled
51%

This segment represents workers who report a high degree of

“fulfillment”

These associates are satisfied in their work, confident in the scope of their responsibility, and assured in how they execute at work. The Comfortable is not the truly ideal segment because work is still viewed as a separate and distinct aspect of self, rather than an integrated part of one's life and lifestyle.

Musketeers
12%

Musketeers are associates who are reasonably happy with their working arrangements and, at the least, have made peace with their situation. Like the famous Frenchmen, this segment views their work as a responsibility to their colleagues as well as society at large – “all for one, and one for all!” There is usually a strong sense of solidarity among these associates. Musketeers work very hard, and understand the importance of their work and take on a high degree of responsibility in performing their job.

Bottom Runners

6%

Comfortable
29%

Square Pegs

2%

This segment represents associates who are unhappy and have a negative outlook on their future. When it comes to work, as the saying goes, these are “square pegs in a round hole” – they don't fit well in to what they're doing. They are the most pessimistic of all segments and in greatest need of intervention.

Summary

Executive Summary of Key findings

Associates are positive:

They are positive about the current and future prospects at the firm

Positive outweighs Negative

Emotionally, associates are far more inclined to feel positively (e.g. proud, grateful, accepted) than negatively (e.g. frustrated and stressed) about XYZ

Associates see XYZ as successful

Associates equally recognize its personality as having family values, and being caring and friendly. On the negative side, the organization can be seen as a follower, especially by male Staff.

Relatively good spread across zones

Which shows a company well balanced.

Associates show positivity towards recent business ideas

e.g. Merging to a multi-sales business,

A person is climbing a large, grey rock formation. They are wearing dark shorts and dark sneakers with white soles. Their legs are visible as they ascend. In the background, a city with many buildings is visible, though it is slightly out of focus. The sky is bright and hazy. The overall scene suggests a challenge or a journey towards a goal.

But.... All good things can get better!

What can we do to make XYZ an even better place for Associates?

Address Stress

Feelings of stress, frustration and being overwhelmed are significant and need to be addressed

A person is sitting at a wooden desk, working on a silver laptop. Their hands are clasped together on the desk. To the right of the laptop is a white mug. In the foreground, there are two smartphones and a black wallet. The background is a blurred office setting.
